

DISCLAIMER: Naive assessment undertaken by Chris.Browne@anu.edu.au based on information available on P&C. Errors, oversights, misunderstandings are likely my own.

ASIA2308 Linguistic histories in Asia and the Pacific

<https://programsandcourses.anu.edu.au/course/ASIA2308>

Prerequisite structure Open to all students

Prerequisite units Completed minimum of 24 units

TD Skills: Do students develop transdisciplinary problem-solving skills through this course?

Likely

Students engage with and are supported to develop appropriate transdisciplinary problem-solving skills

For example

This course introduces the principles and methods of historical linguistics used to reconstruct language histories, which are windows onto the social and cultural lives of past peoples and societies. LO: [Pluralistic] Investigate the linguistic and social past through sources and knowledges from different academic and indigenous perspectives. LO: [Integrative] Construct narratives of the Asia-Pacific past that draw on evidence from a range of disciplines.

TD Skills: Do students meaningfully collaborate across disciplinary/area difference through this course?

Somewhat Likely

Students engaging with material that facilitates collaboration with other disciplinary backgrounds

For example

Class Activity: Case study approach LO: Understand the contemporary linguistic and social diversity of the Asia-Pacific region through trans-disciplinary models of change over time.

TD Context: How is the transdisciplinary problem-solving experience situated with respect to broader contexts?

Somewhat Likely

Students explore big-picture problems, ideas and broader contexts in relation to a discipline/area

For example

Description: This course introduces the principles and methods of historical linguistics used to reconstruct language histories, which are windows onto the social and cultural lives of past peoples and societies.